

2013 Brit Fader Scholarship

The Halifax Amateur Radio Club is pleased to announce that Alex Cushley (VA3CUS) has been awarded the 2013 Brit Fader Scholarship.

Mr. Cushley is a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Physics at the Royal Military College in Kingston Ontario. Alex received his Amateur Radio license – Basic with honours – in 2009, and is a member of the Kingston Amateur Radio Club. He has been involved with “High Altitude Balloon Experiments”, and with setup and maintenance of the VE3RMC Ham Radio satellite ground station; he also participated in the 2012 ARES exercise in Kingston.

Alex is most interested in using Ham Radio to support science experiments and his academic pursuits, including tracking, telemetry and down-linking of balloon and satellite data.
